

James Rhea, Director
First Amendment Foundation

A graduate of the University of Maryland, the Florida State University College of Urban and Regional Planning and the Florida State University College of Law, James Rhea is the director of Florida's First Amendment Foundation. Before taking his current position in January 2010, Rhea was staff director of the Senate Committee on Regulated Industries. Prior to that position, Rhea was staff attorney for the Senate Committee on Governmental Oversight and Productivity, where he worked on a variety of issues, including open government.